

Mossadegh supporters demonstrate in Tehran's Parliament Square on August 16, 1953.

The Shah and his wife Soraya, arrive at Rome airport from Baghdad August 18, 1953 after the unsuccessful royalist attempt to oust Premier Mohammad Mossadegh.

Protesters pull down a statue of Reza Shah on August 17, 1953.

Scuola di Pace - Cervia, 8 marzo 2007

The Shah returns to Tehran in 1951 after exile in London and Paris.

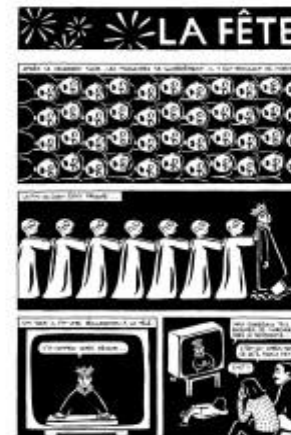

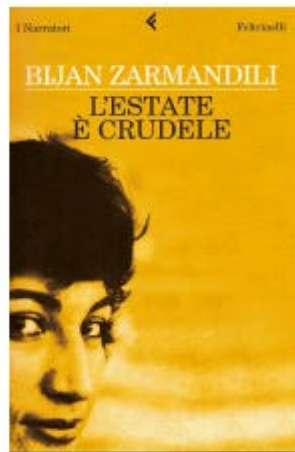

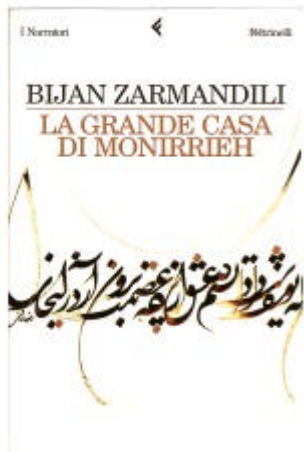

Pro-shah club-wielders fraternizing with the Iranian army in the streets of Tehran after the success of the coup.

Mohammed Mossadegh entering the military tribunal hearing in Tehran, November 8, 1953

Looters at the house of Mohammed Mossadegh in Tehran August 19, 1953, during nine hour coup in the Iranian capital.

Scuola di Pace - Cervia, 8 marzo 2007

HAMID ZIARATI
SALAM, MAMAN

Mohammad Reza Shah and Farah Pahlavi on the White House lawn while President Carter delivers a speech. The Shah is affected by tear gas thrown by the police to control anti-Shah demonstrators in front of the White House, November 15, 1977.

An anti-shah demonstration in Tehran, and the troops stood by to control the crowd, 1978

Troops wearing gas masks control anti-shahs at the gates of Tehran University, 1978

The oil workers went on strike, October 31, 1978

Ayatollah Khomeini arrives in Paris in the fall of 1978 after years of exile in Iraq.

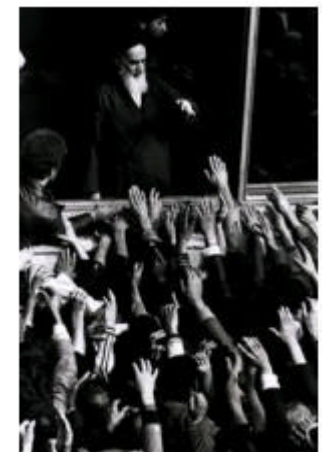

Statue of the Shah being torn down by university students in Tehran, November 1978.

Ayatollah Khomeini in the Paris suburb of Nanterre in Chateau holding prayer, Oct. 1978

People carrying the body of an anti-shah demonstrator shot by army troops in Tehran, December 1978.

Scuola di Pace - Cervia, 8 marzo 2007

